

New Poetry from Virginia Schnurr: “Touchstone” and “Valentine for Lewis Carroll”

TOUCHSTONE

My child's fairy-tale quilt is frail:
the wizard ripped, the prince bald,
the fairy's wing clipped.
Only the wishing well and frog prince survived camp, college, the conception of my grandchild.

My eldest daughter wants the irreparable repaired for her daughter, Maeve Arden, named after a Shakespearean forest.

No longer willing to stitch painted pomp
I sketch a new quilt: a forest where the snake waits, the dark trips, death lives behind every mushroom:
reality feelingly persuades me what I am.

My cataracts removed, I have a grander vision for Maeve's covering.

I add the fool with his books in running brooks, tongues in trees.

Absolute in my giving savvy to the darker side of things my needle pokes the sweet uses of adversity.

VALENTINE FOR LEWIS CARROLL

Purchased by an old woman
for her grandniece
I'm a blue plastic Valentine bag.

I have on me
a rabbit from Wonderland whose creator liked little girls without pubic hair.

I sit all year
on a doorknob
awaiting the day of hearts.

I'm singular,
not a carelessly covered box
but reusable.

My child places
her carefully labeled valentines in me.

Unfortunately, this year will be my finale.

My rabbit will hop off offended by the onset
of hair.
