New Poetry from D.A. Gray: "Our Backyard Apocalypse"

We set small bowls of sugar water on the garden's edge. Bees were scarce since the freeze which had almost finished what the pesticides had started. Still, some survived.