

New Fiction by Colin W. Sargent: Gotwit's End

A flock of birds with glider wingspans and needle beaks rose from the waves as they began their 7,000-mile journey to the Arctic Circle. Banking away from New Zealand toward the heavens, they had no idea what was in store for them.