

New Poetry from Lisa Stice: “Water Cycle”

No matter where we are, the oceans meet us in some form.

I am small and my daughter (who is only eight) – is even smaller and still, our dog is smaller yet, then there are those microscopic zoeand phytoplankton

and the not so micro fish that eat them and so on